tions would not be insurmountable in the refunding of the debts of the larger nations and that if it should develop that they prevented the refunding of the debts of the smaller and newer nations the commission could seek additional authority from congress.

In the discussion in the house, Representative Mondell, of Wyoming, the majority leader, and Mr. Fordney argued that the United States should not be in the position of imposing too great a time limit on the debtor nations or demanding what Mr. Mondell called "a round fat interest rate." They said that personally they favored imposing no restrictions on the commission.

Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking democrat on the ways and means committee, and others on the minority side objected to the senate amendments as not going far enough in the matter of limiting authority, as to the time that interest payments should begin. Mr. Garner said it had developed that it had been the plan to defer the maturity of the bonds in the case of some countries for as much as fifty years.

A separate and record vote was had on the amendment carrying the restrictions as to maturity date and minimum interest rate and it was agreed to 299 to 26, on a bi-partisan vote.

cotton ahead as fast as nature will carry it.

Hence it is obvious that the overwinter weevil must be reckoned with—and while thus keeping the invasion of the fields by adults early in the season down as much as practicable, the next step, of course, is to destroy the propagating invaders as much as practicable.

In this section I find that the more progressive farmers, each season, plek the wilted squares from the plant, take up those from the ground—and burn them! They have found it pays SUCCESSFUL DIRT FARMERS RELATE THEIR METHODS.

RELATE THEIR METHODS.
Perhaps the largest cotton planter in this country are Spann Brothersformerly South Carolinians, and sub-formerly South Carolinians, and sub-sequently turpentine operators in Florida. These men, both of whom have been practical dirt farmers for a score or more of years, are hard workers, personally overseeing every acre of their vast farming interests. They know how to manage labor, and on the farms operated by tenants the latter are given leases only on the con-dition that they shall follow to the letter the cultural methods that are to be given them. Farming is made just as much of a business, with sys-tematic method, as is the hardware business of these men in the city of Dothan—or as is their banking in-terests.

Dothan—or as is their banking interests.

Spann Brothers had approximately 450 acres in cotton in 1321—a small acreage as compared to their gross acreage under the cultivation of various field crops.

They reduced the old-time acreage to approximately ten acres to a plow. They assigned the labor on a basis of intense cultivation. They rode the cotton fields just as they did their "crops of boxes" when turpentining in the yellow pine forests of Florida. They saw that every detail of their program for winning the race with the weevil was carried out. They won!

Said M. S. Spann, the senior of the firm, to me—

Said M. S. Spann, the senior of the firm, to me—

"We begin in the early fall to turning under the stalks. That feeds potash and helps reduce weevil hibernation in the fields. It pays from a fertilizing standpoint.

"As quickly as practicable after Christmas we begin breaking the cotton land, selecting only the best soils available, usually lands recently planted to velvet beans, always selecting those lands that are free from hibered to velvet beans, always selecting those lands that are free from hiber-nating environments. We cut it thor-oughly and harrow it so that the land is practically pulverized. We prepare the seed beds with every care, and fertilize well, but not extraorecast the seed beds with every care, and fertilize well, but not extravagantly. We usually compost sufficiently to broadcast 200 acres at least. We use nitrate in the drill, also feed nitrate of soda and phosphoric acid as the plant grows and cultivation progresses. The amount depends upon the soil conditions. We mix our own ferti-

"We get the seed in as early as is safe—early bearing varieties, usually selecting the prolific big boll varieties. We make every effort to get a stand at the first planting. We chop hoe-width, leaving one and two plants to the hill. We then begin a system of intense cultivation, wet or dry, and continue it until the cotton is ready to begin picking. In the meantime we hick the adult weevils from the buds, and later, when the infestation gets heavy, we pick the infected and failens squares and burn them. We cu'tivate light, of course, in the last few weeks when the staple is forming, but if anything we make the operations faster.

"We make a bale an acre easily on a great deal of our land; and averaged last year around 300 to 350 pounds of lint throughout our entire cotton lands, tenanted and all.

"Of course, some tenants will not be as aggressive as others, work with them as abest one may, and it is this them as best one may, and it is this class that brings the general average on large operations down. Where the program I have outlined, however, was industriously followed in 1921 we made from three-quarters to a full bale an acre right along." SUMMARY OF THE RULES FOR SUCCESS.

It is unnecessary to quote any other dirt farmers in this county, though I talked with several who grow cotton just as successfully as do the Spann Brothers, but on a smaller

Three brooms were produced from under a table by an assistant.

"There." the budget director exclaimed, pounding the floor with the handle of one of the brooms. "is your broom that meets navy specification. And here are brooms that don't meet those specifications but sweep just as well. The navy bought 18,000 of its specification brooms when it could have had 350,000 army brooms for nothing."

The budget director went on to say it took a month's persuasion to make the marine corps adopt a slight change of color in order to use 100,000 army shirts and save $24,000. He told Secretary Denby, however, the record of the navy for co-operation with the bureau was the best of the departments.

THE PUBLIC AWAKENS. On every hand there is evidence of an awakening of public conscience to the fact that a return of normally prosperous conditions in this country awaits the inevitable day when the United States shall take its place at the confertablishment of the human equilibrium upon a basis of international co-operation and good will.

When that comes to pass, prosperity will come with it-and not before.

TENURE OF TEACHERS. In its current issue, The Atlanta Journal of Labor makes vigorous appeal for a change in our school system regulations, under which teachers would be guaranteed security of tenure, pending demonstration of unfitness or conduct detrimental to the service.

The editorial, which is signed by Jerome Jones, editor of The Journal of Labor, and prominent in union labor circles, states that the teachers of Atlanta will ask the board of education to adopt a rule to this effect.

This idea, in effect, proposes to put the teachers of the public schools of Atlanta under the protection of civil service.

This should be done, for if any class of public servants is entitled to civil service safeguards against summary and unwarranted removal from their positions, surely our public school teachers constitute such a class. "It is important," says the labor journal, "that a rule of tenure be made a part of the law governing the public school system; it is necassary if the teaching force is

The important contribution which the Georgia School of Technology is making to the civic life of Atlanta is well illustrated by the announcement of additional courses to be included in the new term of ence table with other nations and the Evening School of Applied work with them toward the re-es- Sciences, popularly known as the Tech Night school, which opens Monday evening.

All of the courses in these eve ning classes are designed primarily independent republican paper of to aid young men in bettering their broad influence in the middle west, immediate positions in the trades said editorially a few days ago, ap- and professions, hence the new subjects offered are essentially utilitarian.

For example, it has been found, say, that scores of young men can secure positions in stores which sell electrical goods, in shops that do electrical repair work, with contractors who have much electrical installations; and that these young men have no technical knowledge whatsoever of electricity. They come as clerks, as bookkeepers or in other capacities, and, after they realize the importance of technical training in order to more effective ly serve their employers and

It is all right for grocers to be 'guided by their conscience" in fixing prices of sugar and other staples, as a high official suggests, provided said conscience is in good working order.

DRINK MORE WATER.

The baby frequently has a notice-able fever in the first two or three days of life due to an unsatisfied dedays of life due to an unsatisfied demand for water. The newborn baby requires no food and should receive no food whatever except that which it gets from the mother's breast in the first two days of life. A young infant should receive first tepid and after a few weeks pleasantly cool water to drink at regular intervals three or four times in the day, no matter what the infant is fed. In hot weather the baby requires still more water and should have all he wants. A great many infants suffer from irritation of kidneys and bladder simply because they do not receive enough water. A great deal of skin irritation and of digestive difficulty in young infants is due to insufficient water.

There is more suggestive experimental evidence to encourage the theory that fever may be actually produced by lack of free water, and everybody knows how profusely the patient perspires at the time of the "crisis" in pneumonia, when the fever disappears and convalescence sets in. One of our best remedies at the oneet of pneumonia or any other acute due to insufficient water. of pneumonia or any other acute respiratory infection, as well as throughout the illness, is the hot muswater elimination through the skin.

In typhoid fever the more water the patient can be persuaded to drink the better the patient's condition will be. In some hospitals such patients actually suffer from lack of water, because they are too sompolest or down cause they are too somnolent or dopy from the illness to call for water. A jug with siphon tube and mouthpiece should be arranged so that the patient may drink freely and without effort whenever he thinks of it, without the necessity of rousing up to call a nurse. He can't drink too much water; he frequently suffers from physiological thirst, whether he is conscious of thirst

Water is an aid to digestion. Cold water immediately stimulates the se-cretion of gastric juice, and therefore cold water may be taken before a meal or in the course of a meal as freedy as desired. Hot water tends to diminish the secretion of gastric juice, and therefore should not be taken just before a meal.

Keeping Promise to a Child In the Particular Instance the Girl Was Promised a Sure-Enough Home. BY ROBERT McCORD (Secretary Georgia Children's Home Society.)

Mary is thirteen years old, and welldeveloped for her age. She would never be called a "common" child, for her qualities are just the opposite.
She is accustomed to both country and city life, for she has lived part of the time with Grandpa, way out in the rural districts of south Georgia, and part of the time in the city. She is not bold, but she would be no more abashed or seem any more out of place in wealthy and refined circlest than in the poorest home. Those flashing brown eyes, lighted up with her characteristic smile, would look if states straight in the face without betraying consciousness that she lives in an institution supported by the fact that she is brim full of the public. Perhaps she is helped to this confident and self-respecting attitude by the fact that she is brim full of the fact that she is brim full of the tract that she is brim full of the public school. But you know, it can't to live in a Home, and when I objected, they told me I would soon go to foster-parents who would take me as their own daughter. Of course, I am well-treated here, and I go to the public school. But you know, it can't be like a sure-and home, and I want some folks of my own/to keep. Maybe I ought not to say anything about it even to you in secret, for the folks at the Home might think I not folks at the Home might think I not not genteful. But you know how it is."

You see from Mary's little confidential talk how she feels about it. Of course, nobody wanted to break a spromise made to Mary, or to any of the other boys and girls now in orphanages and kindred institutions, who went there with the understanding that soon they would be taken by foster-parents who had no child live with them.

nerce, has accepted the post of busi ness manager and executive secretary of the business department of the Georgia state republican committee and will begin his new duties February 15, according to announcement made late Friday by J. L. Phillips, in organization work, his first service with the local chamber being as secre tary of the community service depart ment, which grew to large dimensions under his administration. Later, he assisted in organizing and became secretary of the junior chamber of com-merce, one of Atlanta's most thriv-ing young civic organizations. In discussing Mr. Robinson's ap-eintment, Mr. Philips said Friday : "In finding a man who could manage the work we want done by the republican party in the state, we naturally wanted to get one who was well acquainted with organization work and one whose business ability was also undoubted. The work Mr. Robinson has done with the Atlanta Chamber of Compages in its various Chamber of Commerce in its various branches, and the wide circle of friends he has won by his work there, convinces us that he is the man we need."

Among the ot'er achievements for which Mr. Robinson has been lauded locally is his organization of a wom-an's department in the chamber of mmerce—this branch of the chamber now being one of the most im-portant from the standpoint of civic activity.

The many campaigns for civic bet-terment which have been conducted by the junior chamber during its exist-ence have been operated under the supervision of Mr. Robinson and credit is given him to a large extent for the accomplishments of this body. Prior to his service with the local chamber of commerce, Mr. Robinson organized a chamber of commerce at Newnan, Ga., and served as its secretary until the body was thoroughly under way. During the war and during the days immediately following, he was organizer for the War Caye. e was organizer for the War Camp

Mr. Robinson declared Friday that although the new position was most attractive to him, he regretted leaving work and associations there had been of the most pleasant nature. He ex-pressed his faith, also, in the ability of B. S Barker, the chamber's new of B. S. Raid on Liquor an airplane, marked extension of martial law in Freestone county today. Hardly had it become known that martial law had been extended than an airplane appeared flying low over the wooded sections of the new territory under command of the state military. Signals were given from the airplane and state rangers, working in conjunction with the state guardsmen and prohibition enforcement officers went almost directly to spots where they say they found seven stills and made about fifty arrests.

There was no effort to interfere with the airplane's work of directing the raiders except once, when a single shot was fired at it from a thicket.

Martial law was declared in effect in the Mexia oil field about the middle of January, Governor Neff setting forth in the declarations that state aid was needed to stop lawlessness. The territory first included Mexia and two precincts of Freestone county. Military headquarters was established at Mexia and one company of state troops sent there. It established what was called "Camp Winter Garden" and prisoners arrested by the military were confined there until turned over to federal or state peace officers.

The declaration of martial law to include all of Freestone county became effective today. Brigadier General Jacob Wolters, in command of the state forces, moved his headquarters from Mexia to Teague this morning. This was the first public announcement of the change. Within a short time after the soldiers were moved the raids directed by airplane began. The prisoners taken today outnumbered the rangers and others rounding them up.

Eight New Animals And Pair of Eagles Purchased for Zoo

American eagles are to be purchased and added to zoo collection at Grant park. The animals will be a female kangaroo and her cub, a male spotted park. The animals will be a female kangaroo and her cub, a male spotted leopard, a female puma, a pair of Lobo wolves and a pair of emus.

In part exchange for the animaly and the eagles the park board will give two pairs of axis deer, two male pumas, one wart hog and a zebu bull. The purchase price of the new collection is $1,450, but the city will receive for the animals traded in exchange $950. The zoo now has a surplus of deer and three male pumas. Great difficulty has been experienced by the board in securing the spotted leopard. The particular one that is to make its home in Atlanta is coming from India and is now entrouse across the ocean.

Berrien Retains Felder.

At the office of Governor Hardwick

At the office of Governor Hardwick Friday it was learned that Berrien had retained Thomas B. Felder, fornad retained Inomas B. Feder, for-mer Georgia lawyer, to defend him. The governor's office received a re-port that Berrien probably will not fight extradition, but will come to Atlanta to face the charges against him.

Deputy Sheriff Lee Whatley, who arrived in New York Thursday, went to Albany, the capital of New York, Friday morning, to get requisition papers for Berrien honored by the governor of New York. He was due to return to New York city Friday night. According to the report received at the governor's office Berrien was arrested by two Pinkerton detectives in New York last Tuesday as he was in New York last Tuesday as he was coming out of the brokerage office of Hartshorne & Battelle. He told the detectives that he had just arrived in New York from Indianapolis, Ind., and that his address was Washington, D. C., care the Burlington hotel.

Election of City THREE ARE NUCLE Manager Delayed

Commission Form of Government to Hold Mass Meeting Tuesday.

Decatur, Ga., February 3 .- (Special.)-Selection of a city manager to succeed P. P. Pilcher, whose res ignation takes effect in April, was ostponed at the regular meeting of the commission tonisht until Commissioner Eugene Allen returns to Decature from Florida. With ousterites opposing Mr. Pilcher defeated in several attempts to terminate his connection immediately, it was indicated tonight that no further efforts will be in this direction.

The Atlanta Ice and Coal corporation again presented a petition with blue prints and plans, for permission to erect a plant in that city. The matter was referred to Judge Frank Harwell, city attorney, and will re-ceive attention at the next meeting. The commission twice has refused the company's petition, and a mandamus suit on the part of the concern is

Advocates of the commission form of government have announced a mass meeting to be held Tuesday evening. Scott Candler will preside, and addresses will be made by R. A. Broyles, J. Father Seeks to Find Missing Son Who Left Home in May, 1921

No trace has been found of Cecil B. Shaw, of Ingleside, who left home in May, 1921, and his father, G. W. Shaw, employee of the Georgia Railway and Power company, is very anxious to locate him, as a sister of the missing boy is ill and is constantly calling for him. The father believes his child's condition will improve if he is able to locate her brother.

The boy left home ostensibly to go to Florida, but an investigation failed to discover his whereabouts. He is described as about 5 feet, 7 inches in height, weighs about 150 pounds, has light hair, blue eyes and a light complexion. Anyone knowing anything about the whereabouts of the missing boy is requested to communicate with his father at Ingleside or 79 Piedmont avenue. No trace has been found of Cecil B.

DuPre committed the murder, yet aided him in some way after the commission of the crime.

No action was taken by the jury in regard to Betty Andrews, the woman in the case, and G. A. Wiley, broker, also named in the case.

The indictment against Worth charges that he harbored and concealed DuPre and aided him to escape after knowing that he, DuPre, had murdered Walker, and then assisted DuPre in disposing of a ring which he had stolen from the Nat Kaiser company.

Buckley, in whose taxicab DuPre left Atlanta after the mutter and robbery, it was charged, "did transport one Frank DuPre out of the city of Atlanta, thereby aiding his escape from officers of the law," and that at the time, Buckley knew DuPre had committed the robbery and murder. Geoghan was accused of harboring and concealing DuPre in that he received a letter from the latter addressed to The Atlanta Constitution and then mailed it in Atlanta, "the said act and mailing as stated tending to deceive the officers of the law to indicate that DuPre was still in the county of Fulton." romance than he could ever cram into romance than he could ever cram into one of his screen thrillers.

An effort will be made at the nquest to unravel the cloak of mystery that has to this time made it impossible for the best detectives to make headway in the case.

The robbery theory has not been dismissed, although Taylor's person was not cobbed. A careful check of his property is being made, for it is believed that an ultraclever thief might have intentionally overlooked this to throw scent off the real motive—to get away with the large sum of stocks and bonds Taylor is believed to have kept in the house.

Might be Woman. Attention is also being concentrated on the possibility of the murderer be-ing a jealous lover of one of the dead man's many women friends, or per-hap, a woman herself.

It is reported at police headquarters It is reported at police headquarters that search is being made for a young New York broker, the friend of a prominent actress, who is known to have arrived here and who has disappeared. The police have quietly spread a net for him. It is hinted that his identity may be revealed at the inquest.

The possibility of a woman being the motive of the murder is decried by every actor and actress in the pic-ture colony. Taylor was a dignified friend of everyone, they declare, and had no affairs outside of platonic friendship. But his reticence, the mystery with which he cloaked his affairs, has led detectives to probe this angle to the end.

Twice Married.

Taylor was married twice. His friends here were surprised to learn this. He had kept it a secret. Scores of beautiful women are known to have been madly in love with him. It is this that is causing the investigation of his recent friendships; the women who have called on him; with whom he has appeared at the gay Los Angeles resorts; and who he knew ir his work.

friendship with the fated director.

"He was one of my dearest friends," she said. "I was never engaged to Mr. Taylor, I regret to say. He didn't have an enemy in the world that I know of. He was too fine. Everyone admired and respected him. I could use every adjective in the English language and still not explain my admiration for him."

Mabel Normand was equally as touched and she retold the story of how she called on him, chatted a few minutes, and left his house as he escorted her to her car, chatting with her on tests in literature. She had just bought a Police Gazette she said, and he lent her books by Freud.

Mrs. Johnson later wrote: "My Mrs. Johnson later wrote: "My present health is very good. I still keep Black-Draught in my house, all the time, as it does me more good than anything I have ever used."

Constipation is often a sign that your liver is out of order and needs help. The poisons which constipation forces your system to re-absorb may cause much danger to your general health.

Thedford's Black-Draught is a medicine that every person should keep in the house, and use at the least sign of constipation, indigestion and liver trouble.

Her gaze went round the apartment again.

"I wish Mrs. Jones could see this! She'd never get done talking about it. I 'spose young Mr. Barstowe rented this for you to dress in."

"This was my home," replied Jeanne absently, intent on a scheme which would restrain her relative from meeting her young husband.

"Jane!" Aunt Emil's voice was stern. "Do you mean to tell me that you lived in this place?"

"Of course," returned her niece impatiently.

"Jane!" the grimness of the older woman's voice was arresting. "How could you afford it?"

Jeanne shrugged. She was controlling her annnoyance with difficulty.

"I had a little money. I made more. Investments, you know. One of my friends is a broker—"

"Jane!" it was as solemn as the administration of an oath, "are you a good gir!?"

Jeanne looked up angrily, but at sight of Aunt Emily's face, she burst into laughter.

There was a moment's interruption, when a waiter with a tray made his appearance. He set it on a corner of the table at Jeanne's command, deftly removed a cover or two, and poured "Anything more, madame,?" he asked deferentially, his eyes roving discreetly over her strangely incongru-

"Nothing, thank you."

Jeanne extracted a coin from her purse and handed it to him. The door shut on his murmured thanks.

Aunt Emily's eyes were popping.

"I saw you give him 50 cents. Myland, Jane, you're that extravagant?"

Jeanne laughed gayly.

A Rash Promise.

Her voice had become childishly plaintive.

"I'll do what I can, Aunt Emily," Jeanne promised rashly, her lip curling with amusement at the obviousness of it all.

"That's nice," her relative brightened perceptibly and finished her ice with gusto.

The telephone rang and Jeanne answered it quickly.

It was Barstowe to say that he was going down now. Was she ready to join him?

"Yes, yes, at once," she promised and hung up the receiver, looking despairingly at Aunt Emily.

"Aunt Emily," she said hurriedly, "I'm sorry to hurry you, but if you're going to get that Buffalo train you'll have to leave at once. I have to go anyway, so we couldn't have more time to chat. I'll have a bell boy put you in a cab."

"Deed you won't!" declared her relative with asperity. "Fresh things! I heard one of them say, when I came in: 'Pipe the dame in the funny lid! I'll bet that was her best hat during the civil war!". . . I'll wait until you go. I want to meet your husband."

Jeanne had a moment of despair, then the sight of her cheque book in the top of her traveling bag gave her an inspiration.

She seized it, went to the desk and wrote a cheque in a good-sized figure payable to Aunt Emily. It practically cleaned out her account, but she felt that it was money used in a good cause if it sent her relative on the way resoicing.

Aunt Emily's eyes fairly popped when she read the figures.

"You ain't giving me all this?"

Jeanne nodded.

"If you fly up to the bank right this minute, you can cash it and take the money home. You might have trouble cashing such a large amount out home."

It was a crude pretext, and Jeanne was quite well aware that the bank had closed its doors for the day hours before; but Aunt Emily rose with alacrity. "I'll go right away," she

A Daily Reminder.

There are many things of more or less importance to be attended to each day outside of the regular daily duties. The busy housewife is likely to forget them. Not so if she keep a calendar scratch-pad handy in the kitchen. As she thinks of them she can then jot down opposite the proper dates the things to be attended to. This daily reminder will prevent many little annoyances.

Gorgeous Flounce of Embroidered Metal Lace Seems to Be All That Is Necessary to Make an Evening Frock of Distinction This Season and It Provides a Way for the Home Dressmaker to Acquire a Few. New Clothes.

In December there was a recrudes-ence of metallic lace for evening frocks. It was not confined to the young. The middle-aged found comfort in it. It was used as a slip to drop over a brightly-colored lining of chifover a brightly-colored lining of chiffon, which has been revived into the

The fashion has grown as the months rolled up. Now one expects to see a bit of metal lace on every kind of gay frock. The sketch shows a simple evening frock for one who has not reached forty years; its principal decoration, its reason for existence, is the deep flounce of silver lace that deops from the long-waisted bodice that is wrinkled across the figure and held in place at the underarm seams. Of course, there must be salash

Of course, there must be splash of side drapery. It is provided by the immense open loops of the coral satin of which the bodice is built. These, strange to say, do not hang down in gypsy points to the floor. And the hem of the skirt is not uneven, but flounces must not be jerked up and down like drapery, and that is one of the reasons why they are often more attractive on the young figure than the settled one. Those who build children's frock have no hesitancy in borrowing plumage from the grown-ups so they have taken up aliver lace for tiny pasty frocks. It is fine, not coarse, and of narrow width. It is allied to chiffon or thin creps. The milliners for children have adopted the metal for odd little turbans of relvet and fatch making a kind of Charlotte Corday flounce about the face, or plastering band of the lace back against the high-fluted crown.

Because of the waistcoat fashion which grows in power as the chance to wear tailored suits is better, there is an effort to make ornate waistcoats of silver cloth serve here as they do in Paris. They fasten high over the chest, are double-breased, fastened with large silver buttons, and run well down over the skirt in the nature of an over-blouse. Sometimes they have revers of cloth to correspond with the suit, and if they are worn under a cape, they may have revers of bright-colored broadcloth or washha duvetyne, which is much softer than kasha cloth. Cleaning Glassware.

First rinse glasses that have contained milk in cold water, then washin hot water. The use of hot water at first causes a cloudy appearance which is most difficult to remove.

Worth Remembering.

Never use a metal container to brewing tea.

Coffee for use in the perculator should be ground very finely.

Gloves of skin or leather are beger mended with cotton than silk.

Raisins are easily seeded if boiled in water for two or three minutes.

There is less danger of breaking objects of glass when washed in wooden bowl.

A TRICK SALESMANSHP.

A TRICK SALESMANSHP.

Charlie Davis, best salesman for the Wilson Lock and Key company, was the pride of the office and its gayest ornament. At the close of each week he breezed in with full order book, new stories and an old devotion for Mayme Lewis, the stately stenographe. As regularly as Saturdays came, everyone in the place, from the office boy to the boss, perked up with the knowledge that Charlie was due. With the same regularity, Mayme Lewis wore her best frock in the certainty that she would be asked to finner and a show.

Mayme also knew, and without much of a tremor, that Charlie would propose. He always did. From the first few elaborate avowals, cribbed from books bought from a newsboy on a train, the ceremony had been abbreviated to a word or a look. And the answer was always "no." Mayme was not going to give up her ideas of independence, not even for the best salesman on the road.

On Satuday afternoon, after Charlie

On Satuday afternoon, after Charlie

On Satuday afternoon, after Charlie had once more shaken the office out of its efficient routine and was thought to have left for a moment, he stood outside the door and overheard Daisy Short, the filing clerk, chiding Mayme. "Well, Mame," said he girl, "have you registered your weekly proposal?" 'So that was it?" thought Charlie, losing his smile. "They are making fun of me, and Mayme has told the whole office force everything she knows."

In the hallway, outside of the precincts of the Wilson Lock and Key company, Charlie Davis made a solemn vow. He would be everlastingly ding-busted if he would ever propose to Mayme Lewis or any frizzled typetickler in any office in the United States! Making a vow, with Charlie, was a serious busness, for he had the habit of keeping them. The star salesman went to dinner alone and devoted a week on the road to planning the course of his future conduct toward Mayme.

— next week Charlie took Mayme to dinner. He did not propose, nor next week Charlie took Mayme to dinner. He did not propose, nor did he as much as hint at the state of his affections. The following week it was a show and no dinner, and always he was attentive and distant. His conversation was filled with references to girls he had met on the road.

The silence of Mayme Lewis became the talk of the office. "The poor blek."

make me jealous or something. But anyhow, he's a whole lot nicer when he isn't always proposing. Who could love a man who asks you if you'll have a salad and will you marry him all in one breath?"

By spring Mayme was missing the proposals. The office openly admired the dresses she wore on Saturday afternoons and Charlie wondered at her beauty and graciousness when he took her to the shows. He called himself several kinds of dubs for the vow he had made, and several more for whatever it was that made him keep it.

"Mayme," said Charlie on the way home from a play that had ended with a spotlight shining on two heads close together, "I am a/man of my word."

"You don't say," replied Mayme. "Has anybody been telling you different?"

"Has anybody been telling you different?"

"I made myself a promise," the man explained, "that I would never propose to you again."

Mayme gasped, "My, what an awful thing to do!" With an explanation of the change in Charlie's demeanor and tactics, came a mischievous desire for revenge. "What on earth are you going to do about it?"

A traveling salesman is resourceful. "Now, if you would say something," stammered this one, "just sort of hint at something."

"Mr. Davis," was the frigid response, "can it be possible that you are asking me to propose to you?"

Charlie was crushed. The short distance to Mayme's home lengthened into miles in the silence that followed. When they reached her steps Mayme spoke again.

"The idea you suggested, Mr. Davis."

The Fishermen Set Out.

"Well, these two fishermen started out on Lake Erie in a motor boat. One of the fishermen was an old man, 74 years of age. The other was his son.

"They had gone pretty far out into the lake and done a little fishin' when a heavy gale sprung up. It turned into a real storm. Rain fell in bucketfuls. The wind blew like blazes. The two fishermen decided to run their motor boat with the little row boat they had tied on, in behind a small island they sighted. They did so and tied up the two boats and hurrled onto the island to get shelter.

"But during the storm, while the men were on the island, the heavy motor boat, is shed about by the waves, broke away from its moorings and drifted away on the rough water. Only the small, lighter boat remained. When the two fishermen discovered their loss after the storm had let up a little they were pressed near it.

"The Motor Boat Is Sighted.

"Then, the younger of the fishermen sighted what looked like the motor boat drifting away out in the lake. He jumped into the small row boat and pulled out toward the drifting object. As he drew nearer he saw that it was the motor boat. But before he could reach it he saw the craft sink! Imagine how he must have felt to see the boat going down.

"After about six hours of struggling with his oars he reached the island."

ONE REEL YARNS

"Oh; dear, I do wish I had curly hair like Beulah Rowe," sighed Helen as she jerked the comb through her straight black locks. "Her hair is so beautiful and wavy and golden. If mine were only curly I wouldn't mind it being black so much."

beautiful and wavy and golden. If mine were only curly I wouldn't mind it being black so much."

Just then Helen spied her mother's electric curler. "Why, how funny," she exclaimed. "I never thought of that. I'll curl it, of course."

The next morning Helen's alarm went off earlier than usual. She crawled out of her nice warm bed and worked hard frizzing and crimping her beautiful, hair till it satisfied her critical eye. Then, not daring to put on her hat for fear she would muss the hair, she started off for school.

"Why, Helen, whatever have you don't look like yourself."

Helen blushed. "Don't you like it?" she asked.

"Oh, yes, indeed I do," cried Grace. "It looks lovely." The other girls declared that she looked "eute" and "stunning? and "too sweet." Only Sarah said, "I think I like you better with it straight."

"Oh, Sarah's an old maid," laughed the other girls.

Helen was walking home after school when she heard Bob's whistle and he came running after her. "Gee, Helen, you look funny today," he panted. "What have you done to your hair? It looks as mussy and fuzzy as Beulah Rowe's. I don't like it."

Helen regarded Bob in a superior manner. "That shows how much boys know about such things," she said. "All the girls think my hair looks lovely."

"Huh, do they?" he asked. "I heard Grace ask Lucy if she didn't think you looked a mess with your hair all crimped up like that."

Tears came to Helen's eyes. "I think you're horrid," she declared.

Bob stared at her. "Why, I should think you'd rather know—aw, gee, hoot—I—what—who—why—" he stattered.

Helen looked at Bob and had to laugh at his embarrassment. "I think boys are a lot nicer than girls," she said. "They tell you what they think to your face instead of behind your back. I won't curl it any more. It's too much trouble anyway."

He turned away, the fine carriage of his shoulders changed into the droop of a disappointed boy. And Horatia's heart was full of pity and misery at the inexorableness of his love for her and the impossibility of loving him.

"I will, if you'll devote yourself to antertaining me. Just me—mind. You will, too. We've had some great times. Not a cee for little Willie if he poesn't go straight, says the old man. That means not a cent for Rosie. So we got to be pretty careful here. But New York—"

"When you get it yourself, will you marry me?"

"When do we leave?"

"When d do we leave?"

"Yll leave Sunday, and wait over in hicago. You can meet me by accient on the flyer Tuesday."

"And you'll get the accommodations?"

She nodded a little wearily.
Her packing was very complete. Her urniture was put into storage, and the gent of her apartment agreed, after a rruggle, to sublet it. On Sunday, untended, after a few curiously casual dephone calls of farewell, she left on the Chicago train. Up in the hills, the Country club

Horatia reflected. It was now early afternoon. If she went to Mercy hospital that would be a way to get off and think—and to pass the impatient hours until—

"And you have a baby!"

"Yes—that's why I wanted to see you. Can I call her Horatia?"

"After me—but why after me?"

"Because," said Grace, smiling a little pathetically, "I'd like to have her be like you. Bring her up so that she would be."

Horatia recovered her roles. She set name," she answered, "and please, may I know about it?"

"There's not much to know. It happened. Sometimes such things do happened. At first I thought I wouldn't have it. Then as I faced the idea of abortion, I couldn't. Something bigger than me—something racial, I suppose—took hold of me. So I made plans—dressed cleverly and two months ago went on my vacation—buried myself in a lodging house as Mrs. Gordon. Then I came to the hospital when it was about to come."

"But will you keep the baby?"

"Keep it!" cried Grace, "isnt' it mine? I'll keep it of course. Take it back and say I've adopted it. People will believe it—or not. But I'm pretty valuable to my work. I fancy they'll believe it or pretend that they do. What do I care if they don't?"

"And the father?" ventured Horatic.

Grace's shoulders shrugged just a

She went on talking with her old passion for analysis.

"You mustn't imagine that this is a heavy reformation. I haven't any sense of being reformed. I don't want to be reformed. Indirectly it's because of the baby, of course. I've had love and now I have my baby. I'm not as greedy as most women. I'm contented with my baby. I don't have to have love, too. I have work and my child and that's all I want. You told me once that the sum total of my philosophy was wrong. And I think I've found out why. It's because it didn't have any hope—any chance in it. "You're a wonderful woman, Grace," Horatia said, "more brave and more wonderful than almost any woman I know."

"I'll be nicer, now," admitted Grace.
"Can I hold the baby?"
She took the soft little bundle into her arms and walked to the window with it. Below the first twilight was

Had the University of Georgia Builn of the Bulldogs' annual basketall battle with the Atlanta Athletic club's quintet at the Auditorium last night, the chances are that consider able crepe would be draped about the clubmen's hones for the national championship this season.

But fortunately—if you are addicted to Atlanta's cause—but unfortunately—if you wanted to see the Atlanta grab off the scoring honors—the Bulldogs were unable to keep up the pace and the close of hostilities found the local machine holding the big end, of a 42-30 count.

It was one of the most spectacular ames that has ever been played in battle of Friday night will rank with such games as were played here in the collegiate teurnament last year and in the national champion-ship affair the year before. Showed Strength.

Georgia showed strength that was not expected of her. Atlanta fans were smugly confident of an easy victory. They argued that Georgia had showed no alarming symptoms of basketball greatness for this campaign. The result was that a slim crowd saw the festivities last night. It's a pity that more Atlantans didn't come down.

The attack of the Athenians started The attack of the Athemans status suddenly in the second half and was ended just as abruptly. They had not appeared to be especially dangerous in the opening session. The staunch defensive usually exhibited by Stegeman-coached machines was very effective and the Atlantans were forced to resort to many long tosses. But the second half found the Bullof markers. They were not a bit bashful about rolling them up either. The count was 17 to 11, when Rufus Bass added another two-pointer for Atlanta. Then Georgia started.

and managed to keep at a respectable distance.

From the start of this yarn we have ben wanting to say that it was one of those well-known "moral victories," but the statement probably would not fit the case. Georgia had been doped to lose by more than 12 points, but Coach Stegeman dight say last night that he regarded it as any victory, moral or otherwise.

Both teams might have played better basketball than was exhibited but if some of the fine points of the pastine were absent, the game was worth while because of the spectacular situations that were offered.

Breaks Were Bad.

but if some of the fine points of the pastime were absent, the game was worth while because of the spectacular situations that were offered.

Breaks Were Bad.

The breaks in the first half were favoring the Atlantans, but Lady Luck was fairly sweet to Georgia in the second. The argument was about even in this respect. The first marker came after two and one-half minutes of playing, when Bufus Bass tossed one from the edge of the court. Ten minutes later, the Athenians shot their field goal, but in the meantime Atlanta had run up a nice lead.

In the shooting, the accuracy of both fives was much below par. Rulus Bass had much trouble along the free throw line, but toward the close of the battle he got his eyes on the basket and couldn't miss to save his life. In this department he was outdone by Boney, Georgia's big forward, who rarely failed putting down the ball for a point.

Paige Bennett, Mercer Murray and Boney were the big guns for the Athenians. Atlanta's honors were shared by Louis Merrison, Joe Singleton and Rafus Bass. Giving out the outstanding stars without Alf Scott's name being included seems strange, but the "mirkle man" was watching the game from the sidelines, some recently sustained injuries keeping him out. Close observers with eyes focused on Alfred during the greater portion of the struggle caught him with many annious glances at various stages of the night with 18 points to his credit. Boney, for Georgia, was next with 12. Singleton, Morrison and P. Bennett were near the top with ten each.

The line-up:

bashful about rolling them up either. The count was 17 to 11, when Rufus Bass added another two-pointer for Atlanta. Then Georgia started.

In less time than it takes to tell the tale, Georgia was within one point of the Atlantans and when Boney sent a foul goal crashing through the basket, the score was tied, 21 points for each.

It was an occurrence totally unexpected and it rather dazed the locals. They wanted time to think It over and Captain Sullivan called Griffin Boys Win.

The Griffin boys were in a revengeful mood when they entered the game with the Fulton boys and won by the score of 27 to 23, in a hard-fought and interesting contest.

The Griffin boys started out as if they were going to have a walk-away, leading at the end of the first half by the score of 22 to 9.

In the second half the Fulton players, after a talk by their coach, entered into the game as if they intended to win. Their play was much better in the second half than in the first, and at one time it seemed as if the visiting boys were going CORTEZ CIGAR CO

as true in sport today as it was in war in the olden days. Alex evidently believes an it with all his heart, judging from the amount of goal shooting that the basketball team did yesterday afternoon.

On Thursday it was defense, drill after drill in the fire-man defense, the scrub trying to carry the ball though and then the freshmen trying to carry it through. After the close of the defense drill, the scrimmage with the freshmen resulted in the freshmen drawing a blank in field goals. This was pretty good results from one day's work.

The "St. Louis Kid," known throughout the nation as a great pool player, is in Atlanta for a series of exhibitions, appearing at two performances daily at the Crescent Billiard parlor on Alabama street, starting Monday and lasting through Wedlesday.

William E. Baker is the name this pool expert puts on his legal documents, but he is "Kid" to followers of the pastime in Atlanta who have seen him in previous matches here.

Baker was once manager and playing partner of Frank Taberski, world's pocket billiard champion. According to plans announced yesterday, his afternoon performance will start at 3 o'clock and more playing starts every night at 8. Joe Watts, manager of the Crescent parlors, will be Baker's opponent in both matches Monday. His other opponents will be announced later.

Tech High won the prep basketball league rag for the first half of the league Friday afternoon when they defeated Boys' High in one of the best games of the season. The final score was Tech High, 44; Boys' High, Tech High scored on the very first play of the afternoon, when Clifton got the tip-off and tossed to Captain Richardson, who scored a field goal. Boys' High came back with a field goal on the next play, and Tech High repeated, thus making the score 4 to 2. That in brief is the beginning of one of the hardest fought games of prep basketball ever played on a local court. In losing the game Boys' High won a morale victory, for their playing was the real feature of the afternoon.

The Agoga, Wesley Athletic club, and St. Luke's were winners in the National Sunday school Friday night on the Boys' High court. The best game of the trio was between the fast Agoga and St. Paul teams. The final score was 26 to 12, with the Agoga team in the lead, but the score does not indicate the closeness of the game. Final arrangements have been made at Oglethorpe so that the Petrel box-ing exhibition will be a success. The ing exhibition will be a success. The participants have been working faithfully and some sure enough bouts will be on tap for those that see fit to attend. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited, the time is three bells this afternoon.

The matches will be refereed by J. A. Mayson, better known to Atlanta as the manager of Tim O'Dowd, Georgia's star bantam. These bouts will be three-minute affairs and Oglethorpe is indeed fortunate in getting Mr. Mayson to be the third man in the ring.

The male population of Oglethorpe is approximately evenly divided over the prospects of the outcome of the main bout, that between Vickers and Porter. These boys are middleweights, Vickers weighs 162 while Porter tips the scale at 164. Porter is the stronger, but Vickers is by far the cleverer of the two. At the last meeting of these two boys Vickers won a close decision in three rounds. The judges disagreed and Sartaine, the referee, gave the decision to Vickers. Whether the champion will retain his laurels will be definitely decided this p. m.

Clear the track, boys, here comes the track team in all its glory of long breeches and undershirts. If any of the uninitiated should come out to Tech flats these days, they would probably wonder at the undress parade going on down on Grant field. But it's only the tracksters, limbering up stiff muscles and beginning the long grind for the meets ahead.

Tech has had four men out for some time. They are Barron, Welch, Daves and Williams. These boys are a track team in themselves, it being the purpose of George Griffin, the coach, to allow these boys to go to Baltimore to represent the school in the meet there. After the Baltimore meet, Barron is lost to the track team, for he plays baseball, being the captain of Squad in Action.

"We spend thousands of dollars to put these manholes in," said Mr. Arkwright. "Our whole service depends on its continuity. To ask us to get out on six months' notice or twelve months' notice or any other notice is unreasonable, and it's a position I respectfully submit you're not in a position to impose."

At a recent meeting the city construction department complained that the power company was opening upmanholes the size of which was taking too much of the street. A particular one complained of was being dug at the corner of Ivy street and Auburn avenue. It was to be large enough to house a transformer station.

The committee discussed the possibility of being squeezed for space in the event the city should want to construct additional water mains or sanitary sewers, and decided to recom-

Stole to Have Good Time, Is Charge Against Worth Lad

Macon, Ga., February 3.—(Special.)—James Watson, a white boy arrested here on a charge of larceny preferred by Worth county, authorities, today was delivered to Sheriff J. M. Summers, of Worth county, and was returned to face the charge. The lad is alleged to have stolen $75 from a telegraph station and came to Macon to spend the money and have a good time.

Ebb Green and Otis Everett, both of whom are alleged to have been operating the still.

Early this morning it was reported to Deputy Sheriff F. A. Cochran that a still was in operation about six miles west of here, and he hastily summoned L. King. Jim Owens and Elias Meadows to assist him in the raid.

Reaching the still, which was running at full blast, Green and Everett attempted to escape, but the officers caught Everett. Seeing his partner caught, Green turned on the officers and began shooting, it was stated. L. King returned the fire, instantly killing Green. In the meantime Everett escaped from the officers, but later on in the afternoon, when an attempt again was made to arrest him, he opened fire on Coroner J. B. Crow, firing one shot at close range, and then snapping his pistol. Before he could fire again George Fox, who had been deputized to assist in the arrest, shot Everett twice through the head, killing him instantly.

The officers had been warned before making the raid that both men were armed with 45 caliber Colt automatics and were desperate men. Before Green was shot down by Officer King he shot a hole through the coat of King. None of the officers was wounded.

Friday was a day of prayer observed by a great many people at the Capitol Avenue Gospel Tabernacle, where John Wesley Lee is conducting revival services for a period extending to and including Sunday, February 12. The day closed with a largely attended evangelistic service at night, when Mr. Lee spoke from the first chapter of Proverbs. He preached a forceful and impressive sermon, featured by its simplicity in its exposition of the Scripture contained from the 24th verse to the 33d.

There are no meetings Saturday but on Sunday the evangelist will speak three times, 10:30 in the morning, 3 in the afternoon, and 7:30 in the evening. The afternoon sermon will be the second on "The Second Coming of Christ," the first of which was listened to by a large crowd last Sunday.

Following the morning service at the Tabernacle, the regular annual meeting of the church will be held.

Professor R. J. Oliver, of Chicago, is in charge of the music and song service and a special program of interest is slated for Sunday.

RECORD ADVANCE

Chicago, February 3.—Surpise over a brisk new advance in wheat prices at Buenos Aires today carried the wheat market up well beyond all recent high levels. The closing was strong at 1.78 to 2.58c net gain, with May $1.25.58 to $1.25.34, and July $1.09.14 to $1.09.38. Other staples, too, all finished higher—corn up 5.86 3.4 to 3.467.8c; oats 1.8614 to 3.8c, and provisions 12 to 55c.

What made the latest soaring of Argentine quotations astonishing to the wheat trade was the fact that in the last two weeks the Argentine figures have risen more than Liverpool, notwithstanding that the English market has out-distanced the upturn of values in the United Stapes, so that wheat in this country is again on a world competitive basis.

Posting of the Argentine prices brought about a general rush here to buy, although earlier many dealers had taken the view that advances had been too rapid, and that a reaction was due. Scantiness of domestic receipts northwest, however, together with drought reports from the southwest and from Europe as well, attracted renewed attention during the last part of the day, and setbacks in prices turned out to be of little importance, notwithstanding that sales to realize profits were of large volume.

Enhancement of the value of corn

Enhancement of the value of corn and oats resulted partly from the action of the wheat market and partly from reports showing that stocks of oats in all positions are much less than was the case a year ago. Record-brenking primary receipts of corn this week were almost ignored. The provision market went higher in line with grain and hogs.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New York, February 3.—(Special). Sales in Liverpool this morning showed an increased inquiry for spots in that market with the consequence that cables were about as due in relation to our close yesterday. A better tone in the dry goods market with more inquiry for yarns made quite an impression on the trade so that there was some short covering and buying in of hedges which have been sold on the decire. The market has a better tone and it is felt that the general world conditions are showing signs of improvement as the result of the successful arms conference in Washingington and the probabilities of an economic conference in Europe from which much is expected.

New York, February 3.—After selling off to 15.80 for May contracts on Monday or the lowest price touched since that delivery sold at 22.38 early last September, the cotton market turned firmer on covering and some improvement in trade demand. The latter, however, failed to develop in any general or aggressive way, and the advance was checked around 16.73 for May contracts today.

This represented a recovery of about 75 to 100 points from the low prices touched at the beginning of the week, which evidently attracted some realizing by recent buyers. Otherwise, little pressure was reported and the tone of the market probably reflected reports of a slightly steadier spot situation in the south.

One of the features of the week was the relative firmness of March tion in the south.

One of the features of the week was the relative firmness of March contracts. There appeared to be very few for sale, and shorts were forced to pay an increased premium over later deliveries. There were rumors that people who had taken up cotton on January contracts in New Orleans might ship it here, and it was even suggested that some cotton might come back from Liverpool, while there were also claims that cotton could be bought on a tenderable basis in some parts of the south.

It was not until March showed a premium of about 30 points over May and 75 points over July that there was any easing of its position, however, and nothing more definite has developed with reference to the rumored shipments. The gossip is that March contracts here are held by apot people against sale of either May or July, New crop months were relatively steady toward the end of the week, suggesting some buying against prospective requirements or perhaps a little investment demand through local commission houses who advised purchases of October contracts earlier in the week on the ground that further declines would react on new crop prospects.

No improvement has been reported in the domestic goods marke. Buyers are said to be holding off for the effect of wage cuts, although labor troubles are resulting in New England and may lead to some curtailment of mill consumption. Sales of print cloths in the Fall River market for the week were estimated at 80,000 pieces.

AMERICAN EXCHANGE.

New York, February 3 .- After los-the highest prices in the late trading, when May sold at 16.74, or 22 points net higher. That delivery closed at 16.64, with the general market closing barely steady at a net advance of 7 to 15 points.

The opening was somewhat irregular as a result of overnight realizing sales, with first prices 7 points lower to 15 points higher. Liverpool did not fully meet yesterday's advances here, but showed a better undertone with private cables reporting an improved spot demand, and the local market soon turned firmer on renewed covering. Active months sold 15 to 25 points net higher shortly after the call, which made a recovery of 75 to 100 points from the low prices of Monday.

after the call, which made a recovery of 75 to 100 points from the low prices of Monday.

It looked as though the technical position had eased somewhat on this advance, and the market reacted during the middle of the day under realizing by recent buyers and scattered selling promoted by nervousness over labor troubles in New England mill centers, reports that the rallies in raw cotton had failed to stimulate demand for goods, and rather disappointing figures on spinners takings for the week.

March sold off to about 16.75 and July to 16.07, or 3 to 7 points net lower, but new crop positions maintained slight gains, and the general list firmed up during the afternoon on renewed covering accompanied by reports of a steadier spot situation in the south. January sold at 17.03 and July at 16.29, making the market about 18 to 25 points net higher. The close was 8 to 11 points off from the best under realizing. While spinners takings were smaller than last year's, they compared more favorably with last week's and there was a decrease of 116,469 bales in the world's visible supply of American for the week. Savannah wires said Liverpool buyers were showing some interest in visible supply of American for the week. Savannah wires said Liverpool buyers were showing some interest in the spot market there, but no improvement was reported in domestic mill demand.

SMALL ADVANCES AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, February 3.—Small adv.nces prevailed in the cotton market today, practically throughout the session, the opening being higher, mainly as a continuation of the buying session, the opening being higher, mainly as a continuation of the buying movement of yesterday. Better support was received from the long side and shorts were buyers of covers. On the close the tone was steady and prices were 15 to 17 points net higher on the day, with March at 15.87.

The initial advance was made in the face of an indifferent Liverpool and continued until it amounted to 17 to 20 points, but after March touched 15.90 the market ran into freer offerings, caused by uncertainty over New England mill conditions, the fear being that the wage cuts might lead to a general strike. Mill takings were also regarded as disappointing, being 237,000 bales for the week, against 302,000 this week last year. Selling was increase in acreage in many localities and an increase in the use of fertilizers as well. In the early afternoon the market was at its lowest, at net losses of 1 to 6 points on the old crop months, with March off to 15.66.

The late trading brought a sudden flare-up of strength, mainly on reports that one of the Rhode Island mills, which had been closed on account of a strike over wages, had resumed operation again. Toward the end prices were at their best, 22 to sumed operation again. Toward the end prices were at their best, 22 to 28 points higher than yesterday's finals. March trading up to 16.00 cents and October up to 15.10.

To Warfield's Position

S. Davies Warfield, president of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, has written an interesting letter to Haley Fisk, president of the Metropolitus Life Insurance Company of New York, in which in commenting upon a recent letter of Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, he shows that Mr. Cuyler has come around to the position for which President Warfield was criticised for having taken before the senate committee on interstate commerce in its consideration of relations between the railroads and the four railway brotherhoods.

The Association of Railway Executives recently adopted the following resolution which was sent to the chairmen of the eastern, southern and western associations with the request that arrangements be made by them for these adjustment conferences.

The Resolution.

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this association, as one of the methods provided by Section 1801 of the chairmen of the eastern, southern and western territories of this association, as one of the methods provided by Section 1801 of the New York Central railroad, when we undertook as a committee on interstate committee on interstate committee on interstate committee on interstate committee on the season of the methods provided by Section 1801 of the Insurance of the Section 1801 of the New York Central railroad, when we undertook as a committee of this association, similar in nature to those which in some territories handled negotiations with the four trains and the service brotherhoods, in a fair effort te compose and adjust on the part of a few, of the attitude we assumed at that time, and the four trains and the provided by the transportation act.

Is Now a Good Time to Build? Experts Declare That It Is

The opening of the new year brings a nation-wide renewal of home-building discussion. With the spring building season only a few months off, this is the time for the fireside planning and visualizing the new home with all of its innate appeal to the best instincts of men and women. Many thousands of people have dreamed of that beautiful home that some day they intend to build. But year has followed year and the joys of the new home have never been realized.

Will 1922 be a good year to build a home? Experts declare that it will be. For practically all building materials are down to as near pre-war levels as they are likely to go under the new conditions confronting the world. This is especially true of lumber, lime, brick and plaster, which are being produced at almost pre-war cost, and are being sold by retailers generally at figures as low as the present high cost of handling and transportation will permit.

The man who lives in his own home can save enough in rent in a single year to offset any likely temporary reduction in materials, and after that he may be reasonably sure his home cannot be duplicated for less than it cost him. Build now, is the advice of those who know building conditions. And already there are indications of such a re newal of building that probably by the middle of the next building sea son an advance in the general cost of materials will set in that will represent substantial profit to those who take advantage of the building conditions of early spring. B. MIFFLIN HOOD

in the south.

"No section of the United States has so completely liquidated on labor as has the southern states. It will be the frist section to go into high-speed production," said Mr. Hood.

"The easing on interest rates is most encouraging. There are some industries that are still prostrate, due to the fact that the middlemen have not fully liquidated and that it is costing too much for the manufactured product to reach the consumer.

"We have four clay-working plants which are idle and the laborers express a desire to resume work and replace our present stocks at lower

"We, therefore, have decided to reduce our prices on all of these burnt clay products so as to stimulate building. However, there has been a tendency in some branches of the building material business, to resist reductions and retard building in an effect to maintain wartime profits.

"Our company has taken the position that cost plus a reasonable profit would be the guiding principle for 1922 on the marketing of our lime, plaster, cement and burt clay products in an earnest hope that all idle labor desiring employment would find work and that 1922 would be a banner year in Atlanta's history for building construction."

ciated Press.)—The name of Hugo Stinnes one to conjure with in Germany, has smashed its way into Wall street.

Big business, particularly the steel industry, is interested and asking if Stinnes has designs upon the commercial and industrial activities of this country.

Various reports have come to the United States concerning plans of the German Croesus to extend interests to this country, where he has heretofore been little known. But the first concrete evidence of his plans came yesterday with the announcement that he was negotiating with several American railroads for the sale of 15,000 tons of German rails—at a price, including freight, about $2,50 a ton less than the current American price of $40. A mere 15,000 tons is a relatively small offering, worth less than haif a million dollars at Stinnes' price, but, it was pointed out, it is a very fair sized initial offering.

Whether Stinnes will follow up his inone to conjure with in Germany, has smash-

Mr. Farmer.

New York, February 3.—Wall street's interest in events at Washington has drifted rapidly from international affairs to the much-discussed "agricultural bloo" and the position of the farmer in the country's social and economic scheme.

Almost every recent uterance of leading banking officials has dwelt with emphasis on this situation. The February circular of the Merchanics and Metals National bank, which has many correspondents and other direct connections throughout the farming sections of the west, says in part:

"The farmer's ill-fortune, unlike its general recognition, has not been a matter of overnight development. It has been a feature of the increasing significance over a kind of nearly two years, or since the

Famous Georgia Yams Are Sold At $1.25 a Bushel

That production and curing of That production and curing of sweet potatoes is profitable to farmers was attested to Friday by G. M. Huie, well-known planter of Clayton county and former senator from this district, who during the day sold 100 bushels of Georgia yams to the Rogers grocery stores at the rate of $1.25 per bushel.

stores at the rate of $1.25 per bushel.

Mr. Huie stated that he raised 600 bushels of potatoes on four acres last year, and during the past summer sold $100 worth of his product before prices dropped to 75 cents a bushel.

Feeling that this was not a profitable time to sell, Mr. Huie stored the remainder of his potatoes in the curing house at Riverdale, which has a capacity of 10,000 bushels and which charges 20 cents per bushel for curing and storing indefinitely.

Mr. Huie stated that last year he sold potatoes out of the curing house for $3 per bushel, most of them being disposed of in At lanta. He added that the Riverdale curing house was only half-filled with yams.

almost universal feature of commerce and economics in the post-war readjustment period, the hardship of agriculture has been attended by overproduction, collapsed markets, blocked distribution and low prices, and has made the lot of the producer a particularly hard one. This applies alike to the corn and wheat growers of the middle west, the cattle producers of the western range, and the cotton planter of the south and the potato farmer of New England."

Washington, February 3.—The present sugar crop of the Dominican republic undoubtedly will be the largest on record, vice Consul G. A. Mackinson reported today to the commerce department.

It should total, he said, at least 250,000 tons as compared with 200,000 tons in 1926-21, and 202,000 tons in 1919-20.

Atlanta offices of Doremus-Daniel & Co., Friday received the following comment over its leased wire:

"On January 20, the average of the industrials, according to Dow-Jones, was $2.95, representing the high since December 31. At close last night it was $2.86. In the interval between January 20 and yesterday the market has been classed as 'reactionary,' but it took only a one-day advance to wipe out practically all the reaction of the previous ten days. In short the market position seems to be exactly the reverse of that of a year ago, when halting recoveries for several days would be followed by a break which, in one day, might wipe out all the gains previously made.

might wips out all the gains previously made.

"The short position has been increasing during the past two weeks in sugars, oils and in issues like Ceneral Electric and United Fruit. Traders have been confident that crude oil prices would be reduced, but they are losing some of their confidence, and it would not be surprising to see the oils respond further against short covering. Independent steels were sold short on the strength of reports that mergers were off. This news is not as positive as it was.

"Lest it be overlooked, it should be borne in mind that the equipments are rather steadily entering new orders upon their books.

markets seem to be passing through one of those periods of reaction which are frequently met with when trade and industry are recovering from depression. Therefore, the varying degrees of activity visible in various lines entitled the situation as a whole to the description of 'spotty.' Buying for the nearby positions is generally confined to careful replenishing of depleted stocks, with best reports generally coming from cities and the poorest from agricultural regions.

Coffee.

New York, February 3.—The market for coffee fatures was firmer with rather a better volume of business today. Yesterday's reports of an improved spot demand were followed by some trade buying on negoris of a firmer cost and freight situation. May contracts sold up to $8.56 and september to $8.45, making net advances of 10 to 11 points, but the market lost part of the improvement under realizing. May closed at $8.46, with the general market closing at a net advance of one to five points. Sales were estimated at about 26,000. Closing quotations: March, $3.55; May, $8.49; July, $8.40; September, $8.29; October, $8.36; December, $8.36.

Spot coffee steady: Rio 7s 9c; Santos 4s 11% to 124%c. Cost and freight offers included Santos 2s and 5s at $11.80 to $11.90. Rio 7s at $8.50 and Veltoria 7s and 8s at $8.18 American credits.

The official cables reported an advance of 1-52d in Rio exchange on London. No quotation was received for the dollar buying rate. Rio futures were 25 to 75 reis 100.

Special shares continued to dominate the market, which again derived most of its initiative from the actived most of its initiative from the active flow. This shows the way the wind is blownized from the stock at thing, although most everybody except unit, railway labor wants this uscless but costly law repealed.

Short covering was most urgent in the oils, motors, junior steels and low priced rails. The rise elsewhere, notably among dividend paying transportations, evidently was based upon prospects of better earnings, as indicated by increased car loadings.

To Normal Condition Shown in Its Exchange

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

New York, February 3.—England's gradual recovery to norm or pre-war, conditions is forcibly illustrated in the recent upward cour of her foreign exchanges.

Two years ago—February 4, 1920—demand bills on London as fered their most disastrous collapse in this market, with all oth international currencies, falling to the unprecedentedly low question of $2.19.

Today, on the continuance of a ten-day advance, and on buyl which shows no trace of foreign origin, the same bills found reas sale at $4.30 7-8. This marks a recovery in the two years of almo $1.12 in the pound sterling, but is still far below the price of $4.86 5 at which this form of exchange ruled before the opening of the wor

Studebaker Stock Center of Interes

New York, February 3.—Advances were scored at the opening the stock market this morning and throughout the day the upwards movement continued. Studebaker was the stock attracting most tention, a new high record for the year being made at 92 around o'clock. This compares with 93 1-4, the high made last year, wi 126 3-8, the high for 1920, and with 151, the high for all time made 1919. It was learned today that the pool which has been operating in Studebaker for the past two years has just sent out checks to possible the pool has been wound up. Two of the largest stockholders of Studebaker are active mangers of the pool him is still operating in the stock.

While Studebaker was advancing 1 1-4 points today to its new high record, Chandler moved up 3 3-4 points.

Motors were the feature of the early trading, but after noon considerable strength developed in the rails. This was after wheat and cotton both advanced sharply. The advances in wheat and cotton both advanced sharply. The advances in wheat and cotton during the past two days have had a very favorable effect on stock market sentiment. In this connection harkers in close touch with the ket sentiment. In this connection, bankers in close touch with the west pointed out that the tables were all set at the beginning of the year to go ahead, when the Chicago bank troubles developed, forcing liquidation in the grain and stock markets.

liquidation in the grain and stock markets.

Corn products also made a new high for the year early today at 104 3-4. The 1921 high for this stock was 104 1-2; for 1920 it was 107 and for 1919 it was 109 7-8. The high war-time price was 113 1-2.

Rails were helped by rumors that Louisville and Nashville was considering a 66 2-3 per cent stock dividend, with the par value of the stock reduced from $100 a share to $25. The company has outstanding $72,000,000 stock, and its profit and loss surplus at the close of 1920 was $78,309,000. The annual report for last year has not been issued. There is no longer any great need for a railroad to carry a large profit and loss surplus. The government makes them divide all surplus earnings over a certain amount of property account.

Selling Price. The average selling price of eight was dumped on the market, caush principal iron and steel products has rumors of a receivership, it was learn remained for weeks at $44.09. This ed from banking circles this sellin classified by the delegates as standing outside the conference itself, but the two interested delegations have signified that they might desire to bring their negotiations to an end, formally, in the presence of all the powers and thus before all the world.

Pullman shot up 3 points today when Haskell Parker was stricken from the list, showing that the last loose ends of the merger had been tied up.

Much Oratory Expected.

Tomorrow's plenary session, which really will wind up the work of the conference exactly twelve weeks from the day it met, is expected to develop little discussion on the treaties and resolutions themselves since all of them have been debated at length in committee and most have been formally passed upon in one form or another by the conference itself. It was indicated tonight that speech-making would be held to a minimum until the last vote had been taken, but that an open season for oratory would prevail when the time came for avairs, face. open season for oratory would prevail when the time came for saying fare-

Besides the two treaties on the Far East, several of the fifteen resolutions adopted in committee on Chinese questions are to be put into declaratory form and formally accepted, by the powers. The decisions to be so treated, it is explained by delegates, are those which merely carry gates, are those which merely carry out executive governmental policies and do not require parliamentary rati-fication. Second Conference Project.

Among the non-trenty subjects not relating to China which are to be embodied in the series of conference resolutions are the project to call another international conference to revise the rules of war and the decision to put into the conference record the declarations made here by the United States and Japan regarding Siberia. The American, Japanese and Chinese declarations on the "twenty-one demands" may similarly be formally entered on the record tomorrow.

Speaking for the United States at today's committee discussion of the "demands," Secretary Hughes revived the American attitude on the treaty of 1915 between Japan and China and made it clear that flot alone the powers belonging to the Chinese financial consortium should benefit by the Japanese concessions in Manchuria which Japan annowneed yesterday she would throw into the consortium, but that all other powers having relations with China should be understood to possess the same advantage. The secretary also is understood to have made the point in connection with the general policy of the open door in Manchuria that citizens of the United States should possess the same rights, or be in a position to ask for any rights which Japan claims in Manchuria.

During the discussion of the treaty concerning revision of the Chinese tariff, Arthur J. Balfour, of the British delegation, put the question as to whether the understanding existed that other world powers not signatory to the document should be expected to adhere to its terms. Senator Underwood, of the American delegation, is said to have replied that it was expected that all powers would observe the treaty.

Wilmer, as spokesman, said in part that:

The commission does not undertake to criticise the judge's exercise of his discretion, but only to call to his attention the facts as they appear upon the records of the court and to ask the advice of the judge as to the best plan for putting a stop to the sale of liquor in Atlanta. The commission shows of the pressure brought to bear upon the court by friends and relatives of the accused to be lenient to blind tigers, and, for that reason, wishes the judge to know that a great body of Atlantans are anxious to have the law rightly and strictly enforced in a way to serve notice on possible offenders that a violation of the law means passed, this problem will still be before us. To relieve the judge of any embarrassment, Dr. Wilmer said, it had been suggested that an effort should be made to amend the law to take away the discretion of the judge in fining a second time; the amendment would require the judge to impose a chaingang sentence.

The Sympathetic Judge.

Judge Calhoun did not appear favorably impressed with this suggestion. He said that the court's chief difficulty was the judge's sympathy with the helpless little children and the wives of blind tigers, who would perish if the bread-winner of the family were sent to prison. The judge thought that much good would be done, if the legislature would enact a law providing that wages should be paid to the blind tiger sentenced to jail. The wage could be paid not direct to the prisoner, but to the probarect to the prisoner, but to the proba-tion officer, who could use it to sup-port the wife and children of the blind

Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, of the commission, said that the committee would be glad to undertake the support of the families of all blind tigers sentenced to the chaingang, where the wives and children are in danger of perishing, in order to relieve the mind of the judge in imposing chaingang sentences, until such a law as that suggested by the judge could be passed.

"The committee would gladly do this," said C. N. Walker, "to enable the judge, without doing violence to his sympathy with the helpless children and wives of the blind tigers, to protect the many other wives, mothers and children, who are now suffering from the blind tiger's trade, by sending the blind tiger to the chaingang."

At that meeting also, M. M. Davies, chairman of the committee on unemployment, will make a full report, with recommendations for future action by the committee.

The most serious question before this committee is that of unskilled labor and subnormal persons, willing, but unable to do effective work. After the present acute problem of unemployment has passed, this problem will still be before us. The committee hopes that a plan may be worked out for training the unskilled, and that the next session of our legislature will make sufficient appropriations for the proper maintenance and equipment of rightly and strictly enforced in a way to serve notice on possible offenders that a violation of the law means punishment, and not licensing by the collection of a fine. These citizens would support the judge in imposing jail sentences.

The Anti-Lynching Bill.

Dr. Wilmer, chairman of the commission on race relations, will report to the Christian council at next Friday's meeting with reference to the Dyer anti-lynching bill. This bill has passed the house by an overwhelming majority. If the measure is to be defeated, it must be done in the senate. The bill, the chairman of the committee on race relations feels, should be defeated, and can be defeated, if it is made clear to the senate, that there is a determined effort in the south to stamp out lynching. The bill is a direct attack upon the sovereig y soum to stamp out tynching. The bill is a direct attack upon the sovereig' y of the individual state, and can be justified only by conclusively showing that the state is unfit to exercise its sovereignty.

The chairman of the committee on race relations believes that now is the time to make it clear both to the senate and to the people of the United States that Georgia herself will make an end of lynching.

These matters, the liquor traffic, unemployment and lynching, will make the next meeting of the Christian council one of great interest and importance. In addition, the meeting of Friday, February 10, will be the annual meeting for the election of officers. It is hoped that every member of the council will be present.

Laurens Farmers YUNG SBUND WEK; Indorse Hollomon DR. ODUM CLEARED Killing Thursday

Dublin, Ga., February 3 .- (Specal.)-The series of articles in The Constitution by James A. Hollomon, Laurens county farmers have put into practice every known formula or system which promised to produce cotton under boll weevil conditions, and but few have even been of small assistance. The Hollomon articles ore clipped from the paper each day and placed in a folder by many who will use the information thus learned through the aid of The Constitution ir the planting and cultivation of this year's crops.

Mr. Hollomon has visited Dubliu many times during the past few years and has a host of friends here who cagerly call for The Constitution each day in order to read what he has learned of the methods of cotton production in the states of the great southwest.

It is a general expression here that The Constitution is doing a service of inestimable value to the farmers of Georgia and the efforts of the paper formation of such high value is a note-worthy and highly modern step for a great daily newspaper.

BARTLETT TO AID HIGHWAY BOND DRIVE IN STATE

Dublin, February 3 .- (Special.)-Under special arrangement between commissioners of the local chamber of commerce and members of the state highway bond campaign committee, N. G. Bartlett, secretary of the Dublin trade organization, has been "loaned" to the bond committee for half-time for the next few months.

Mr. Bartlett will have a very im-portant assignment in the work and his ability and long experience in his ability and long experience in handling such projects fit him for playing a leading role in promoting the proposed bond issue of $75,000,000. It was learned today that the bond committee had insisted that Mr. Bartlett be named the head of the committee with offices in Atlanta, but the lecal organization though it unwise to part with the services of the secretory at a time when his work was badly needed in this section.

CASHIER SENTENCED Is Found Guilty of Embezzlement.

Hamilton, Ga., February 3 .- Milton Camp, former cashier of the Bank of Shiloh, was sentenced from two to three years on a charge of embezzlement here today, following a verdict by a jury which found the defendant guilty and recommended that he be punished for a misdemeanor. Judge W. C. Worrle, presiding, overraled the recommendation and sentenced the defendant on the criginal charge. Notice was given that a motion for Notice was given that a new trial will be filed.

GIBSON IS HONORED BY BROTHER MASONS

W. Bayne Gibson, a past master of the Pythagoras lodge of Masons, Decatur, Ga., was shonor guest at a dinner-Friday night in the Peacocs care given by Pythagoras lodge, which was attended by 150 fellow Masons.

Joe Bowdoin, Masonic grand master of Georgia; Colonel George M. Napler, state attorney-general and past grand master of Georgia Masons, Scott Candler, a past master of Pythagoras lodge, and Dr. William Torrence Stuchell, pastor of the Central Congregational church, and president of the Atlanta Masonic lodge, spoke, each of them praising Mr. Gibson, who was recently elected potentate of Yaarab temple.

Mr. Gibson in his response thanked the speakers for their words and told how his life had been influenced by the Pythagoras lodge, which is one of the oldest Masonic lodges in the state of Georgia, having been granted a charter 77 years ago.

Invitation was extended Dr. Stuchell to attend a meeting of the Pythagoras lodge next month in Decatur and confer master degrees. Dr. Stuchell in turn invited the members of the lodge to attend the Atlanta Masonic club meeting, which is held every Tuesday afternoon in the Peacock cafe, The Pythagoras lodge now has more than 500 members.

CREW STREET SCHOOL ENTERED BY BURGLAR

Another of the many cases where schoolhouses have been entered by burglars recently, came last night when a hurry call was sent police station from Crew Street school, where two men on the beat had seen a man looking out of one of the schoolhouse windows. They made a search and called for more officers but the man managed to make his escape, probably through another window. It is not known whether he managed to steal any school property or not.

Three Arrested

G. T. Young, railroad special officer arrested Wednesday night after Dr. O. T. Odum, manager of a drug store at Marietta and West Alexander streets, had told police that the officer had forced him to sign a check for $90, was held for trial in the state courts Friday afternoon in recorder's court.

Following his arrest, Young told police officials that Odum recently stole a gun and watch from him, and that he had forced the druggist to give him the check in settlement for the articles.

Young absolved Odum of the theft accusation Friday. He stated that it was while under the influence of whisky that he came to the conclusion that Odum had stolen the articles, and, he said, that he had found his charge was baseless.

A Year of Opportunity

The building industry was the bright spot in the situation last year and thousands of families were made comfortable by its payrolls.

This year starts off still better. January permits almost doubled those of last year.

1921.....$ 586,909 1922..... 1,045,405

There is every indication that this will be a record-breaking year. The Bond Commission is to spend $4,- 000,000. Architects and contractors are busy on new projects.

The County announces a road building program of $1,500,000.

The State Highway Commission is spending $4,000,000. Scores of counties and towns are planning or building schoolhouses and other public edifices.

A year ago it was hard to get building money on any terms. Now good loans are sought by lenders.

This is the year of opportunity for prospecitve home owners.
